AN ADVENTURE BY S. DRUMM

WELCOME TO TERALIS

N ow, for reasons entirely your own,

you have made the crossing.

Perhaps you came seeking fortune or adventure. Perhaps you're searching for someone. Perhaps you're running from someone. You may be an exile, a pilgrim, a scholar, a criminal, a hero - or simply someone who looked toward the horizon and decided that whatever waited there had to be better than what you left behind.

A few hours before dawn, your ship entered the crowded harbor of Sydire, one of the great cities of the eastern coast. You arrived with whatever you could carry, a few dubious stories about the country beyond its walls, and a map whose usefulness remains to be seen.

There is, however, one instruction you can read quite clearly.

GO TO THE BLUE OYSTER INN.

ASK FOR LAVINE.

SAY THE CAPTAIN SENT YOU.

Someone there is waiting for you.

And they have 50 gold pieces.

You know almost nothing about Teralis.

What your character knows may be rumor, scholarship, religion, old sailors' tales, or something learned before the crossing. Different characters may know different things.

The rest is waiting for you.

BEFORE YOU ARRIVE

ABILITY SCORES

Standard Array or Point Buy

YOU ARE AN OUTSIDER

Your character has recently arrived from overseas. Have some sense of why they came to Teralis - adventure, exile, following someone, searching for something, escaping obligations, curiosity, starting over, or whatever makes sense to you.

BACKSTORY

This should not feel like homework. Loose concepts are welcome. If you want, we can build the details together.

THE FUN STUFF

QUIRKS

Quirks are the little things that make a character feel like a person: habits, preferences, superstitions, mannerisms, beliefs, physical oddities, or other small details. Two fighters might have identical stats, but the one who refuses to sit with their back to a door and obsessively collects tea leaves feels completely different at the table. Start with a couple; you may eventually have five. Quirks have no significant mechanical bonus or penalty.

A LITTLE SOMETHING EXTRA

Every character begins with a magic item at DM discretion. It might be inspired by your quirks, backstory, relationships, character concept, or simply DM inspiration. Once your character has five Quirks, you get to keep the magic item.

OPTIONAL: DISADVANTAGE FOR BONUS FEAT

You may take one meaningful mechanical Disadvantage in exchange for one additional Feat. The full list is in the separate Disadvantages for Bonus Feats handout.
